Planning for Success in 2024!

"Goals are dreams with deadlines."
— Diana Scharf

When planning your new year, take a page from successful businesses. Winning organizations have a defined vision, purpose, and mission. Most also go through a disciplined year-end business wrap-up, summarizing how they did on goals, auditing inventories, analyzing budgets, and then using this information to establish goals, plans, and budgets for the coming year. Why not translate that process into the business of YOU?

First, when tackling a new year, it helps if you have a vision for your life plan. While it may be dynamic and change over time, having an underlying vision keeps you focused. Take the time to document your vision and create a personal mission statement. Your vision should be rooted in your interests, abilities, and values, and should point to your personal dreams and aspirations. Document it in a written statement or on a vision board.

Next, take a few minutes to conduct a brief inventory of your past year: What did you accomplish in 2023? What are you most proud of? What lessons did you learn? What do you wish you had done better?

Did you procrastinate? Did you stick to your values?

Finally, use this information to set goals for the coming year. Carry over any important goals that were incomplete in the prior year, and think about what you'd like to accomplish in various aspects of your life:

- Work goals might be earning a degree or certificate, working towards a promotion, or learning to be a better manager.
- Personal goals might be spending more time with family or friends, taking an exotic trip, or learning a new skill.
- Health goals might be to exercise more, to eat a healthier diet, or scheduling regular medical checkups.
- Financial goals might include controlling spending, reducing debt, or saving towards a big goal, such as buying a house or planning for an early retirement.

Keep your goals realistic and achievable. There's a good video lesson on goal setting in our "Trainings" below that can help. In addition to this and other training on goal setting, your MAP offers numerous personal coaching programs that can help you make progress on work/life goals for 2024.
