Smart Summer Safety

Summer is the season for vacations, cookouts, beaches, hikes, road trips, and time outdoors. But warm-weather fun also brings seasonal risks. These simple precautions can help you and your family stay healthy and safe:

- Beat the heat: Hot weather can lead to dehydration, heat exhaustion, or even heat stroke. Drink plenty of water and limit alcohol and excessive caffeine during extreme heat. Know the warning signs of heat exhaustion: dizziness, headache, nausea, muscle cramps, weakness, and heavy sweating. If symptoms worsen or if confusion develops, seek medical help immediately.
- Protect your skin and eyes: Sun exposure can damage your skin and increase the risk of skin cancer. Use sunscreen with SPF 30 or higher, wear sunglasses that block UV rays, and consider hats or lightweight protective clothing when spending extended time outdoors. Remember: Even cloudy days can expose you to UV radiation!
- Practice water safety: Swimming, boating, and pool time are summer favorites, but accidents happen quickly. Never leave children unattended near water, even for a moment. Wear life jackets while boating or participating in water sports and avoid swimming alone. Alcohol and water activities are also a dangerous combination that can impair judgment and reaction time.
- Stay alert on the road: Summer travel means busier roads and more distractions. Fatigue, texting, speeding, and impaired driving all increase accident risks. Plan ahead, take breaks during long drives, and avoid using your phone behind the wheel.
