Holiday Hacks for a Happy Season!

The holidays can bring joy and connection, but they can also include a fair amount of pressure. When money is tight or life is complicated, expectations can feel especially heavy. You don't need a picture-perfect celebration to have a meaningful season. These ten tips can help you make room for what matters.

1. Make a spending plan. Set a holiday budget that includes gifts, food, travel, decorations, and other extras. Decide what you can comfortably afford before shopping, use price comparison apps and websites, and track purchases as you go. A bargain only saves money if it fits your plan.
2. Give more, spend less. Suggest a gift exchange, spending limits, or gifts just for children. Homemade treats, a shared outing, or help with a household task can be thoughtful alternatives. Talk about changes early so everyone knows what to expect.
3. Put your benefits to work. Explore your EAP's online budgeting tools and financial resources – and be sure to check for substantial savings in Member Discounts. Personal assistant services may help you find local resources or simplify seasonal tasks. Check which benefits are available to you and your household.
4. Plan holiday meals carefully. Potluck gatherings where everyone contributes can alleviate the financial burden. Research budget-friendly recipes and shop strategically, taking advantage of sales and coupons.
5. Protect your breathing room. Choose a few priorities instead of saying yes to everything. Share responsibilities, simplify meals, and leave open space on your calendar. A polite "I can't this time" can help keep commitments manageable.
6. Care for yourself, too. Make time for rest, regular meals, movement, and activities you enjoy. Notice when you feel overwhelmed and take a break or reach out to someone you trust. Remember that your EAP has great coaching and other tools for stress management, and counseling is available 24/7 via telephone, chat, text, and more. Your needs deserve a place on the holiday list.
7. Plan for family friction. Set realistic expectations and decide which topics you'd prefer to avoid. Have a calm response ready: "Let's talk about something else." Shorter visits, separate gatherings, or an agreed departure time may make celebrations more comfortable.
8. Allow traditions to change. Divorce, grief, caregiving, or other life changes may call for a different celebration. Keep comforting traditions, change others, or start something new. When children are involved, explain plans clearly and keep their needs central. Leave room for mixed emotions.
9. Keep safety in the season. Avoid rushing on the road, arrange a safe ride if drinking, and watch for suspicious shopping links or payment requests. Follow cooking and decorating safety basics. Give yourself permission to stay home when ill.
10. Be generous with yourself and with others. Forgive yourself and forgive others. Perform random acts of unexpected kindness for strangers. You don't have to handle holiday challenges alone. Your EAP can offer confidential support, practical resources, and help finding your way through a difficult season.

Giving Thanks

With Thanksgiving ahead, it's a great time to practice gratitude. Think about who you'd like to acknowledge with thanks. We have a few ideas, starting with our active-duty military as well as our veterans. We also owe deep gratitude to our healthcare workers, educators, first responders, caregivers, and volunteers. We're also indebted to our employers and members, our providers, partners, and colleagues. Who's on your gratitude list this year?
